

Count the number of valid messages that the PLC receives. This is not needed for any control, but just to see that a message was received by the processor correctly.

